

Special Education Teacher/Intervention Specialist

Looking for a dedicated Ohio licensed teacher in Special Education (intervention specialist) and/or Science who is interested in working for a small public community school with 21 years of devoted service to those with autism and other disabilities.

Oakstone Community School is founded on a student-centered mission and consists of an incredible team with expertise in multiple areas. Additionally, it contracts with related service providers who work both in and out of the classrooms to provide occupational and speech/language support. Staff are fully trained and equipped to handle a variety of learning, communication, and behavioral needs. Administration is hands-on and provides leadership and support rather than managerial demands.

The successful candidate must have the following skills:

- Differentiation skills for working with students of varying ability levels
- Passion for working with students with disabilities
- Ability to delegate tasks appropriately to Educational Aides
- Willingness to be part of a team
- Flexibility when provided changes to routine/tasks

If you would like the opportunity where you can truly make a difference and work with an amazing staff, then this is the place for you.
